

Job Title: Contract Scientist, Discovery Biology

Location: Suite 1300, JLABs, MaRS Building West Tower, Toronto, Ontario

Duration: 6 months

Start Date: December 2021 (flexible)

About Us:

Endogena Therapeutics is a preclinical-stage biotech company that discovers and develops first-in-class endogenous regenerative medicines to repair and regenerate tissues and organs. Our approach has the potential of a paradigm shift to treat degenerative conditions related to ageing and genetic disorders. In our most advanced programs, we are targeting degenerative diseases of the eye, including retinitis pigmentosa and dry-AMD.

Opportunity:

- Support us in our mission to foster healthy aging through activating endogenous cells for organ and tissue regeneration.
- Become part of a fast-moving, motivated, and high-performing team, committed to quality at work.
- Gain valuable experience in the biotech industry

Key Responsibilities:

- Culture and maintain cell lines, prepare reagents
- Perform pre-clinical pharmacology studies using in vivo disease models
- Support the research team in cellular assay development for compound screening
- Perform image and data analysis
- Detailed documentation and analysis of experiments in physical and electronic notebooks

Experience and education requirements:

- Master's degree in molecular and cell biology or related study field. Applicants with a PhD are also encouraged to apply.
- Proficiency with tissue culture techniques and/or with rodent work
- Candidates with experience working with the retina or with stem cells, immunohistochemistry, microscopy and image analysis are preferred
- Experience with python, R and data analysis is a plus
- Willing to learn and adapt in a fast-evolving work environment
- Ability to communicate in a clear, concise way in English
- Contribute positively to the culture of a small, mission-oriented, collegial team
